

The Serengeti Poem

"With the birth of calves in the south, bring to mind no doubt about the future of the migratory scouts.

The wildebeests begin their dispersal to complete a traversal: From Ndutu to Kirawira, from Grumeti to the Mara, from Serena to Seronera.

With Serengeti stakeholders laying their bets and hoping for no debts wishing for the visitors genuinely whisked at, not to become the frequently missed at.

The wildlife continue their journey to cross, hoping for no loss on the swollen rivers.

But as nature had predicted just like the addicted, the croc made certain any wildebeest that would dock on the Mara would certainly be cloaked.

This process is not a bad thing for all because Leopards on the acacia, Lions on the kopjes, and Cheetahs on plains would have no play, eventually turning to clay.

This would seem that that beam of conservations efforts would need to deem.

But alas! How certain nature is that the all imperfections in humankind are perfected in nature.

How the beasts come in thousands giving the canine adaptors only time to take some captors.

Further to add and to be so glad, the trampling of the riverbeds brings to surface the sand soaked fish and plant life, letting the storks, fish eagles and other birds partake in nature leniency underscoring nature's commitment to brilliancy.

As years, decades and centuries go by, one thing is sure: the revolution of the evolution of the Serengeti will continue and the Serengeti shall not die."

Professional Destination Planning & Reservation Offices

Americas Office

AfricanMecca, Inc
1275 Glenlivet Drive
Suite 100
Allentown, PA 18106
United States of America

US Reservations Phone: 1-866-KARIBU-1 (527-4281)

Fax: +1 (775) 371-8053

United Kingdom - European Office

AfricanMecca Ltd
TheWorks Building
5 Union Street, Ardwick
Manchester, M12 4JD
United Kingdom

UK Reservations Phone: 0871 210-4532

European & International Reservations Phone: +44 (845) 201-1267

Fax: +44 (870) 762-5253

E-mail: sales@africanmecca.com | Web: www.africanmeccasafaris.com

Contact Your Travel Agent

PLEASE RECYCLE OR REFER. SAVE OUR FORESTS AND EARTH.